

Land Use & Zoning

With land use and zoning attorneys located throughout the Southeast, we work with clients to craft and execute legal strategies that take their projects from concept to reality. Whether that project is small and residential or large and industrial, we leverage the full strength of our administrative, regulatory, corporate, environmental, and legislative capabilities to see the development through to ribbon cutting.

Our team represents clients in securing special permits, zoning variances, authorizations and certification, and special exceptions for particular projects. We also regularly help ensure the project assimilates into the larger land use scheme of a municipality.

We assist clients with permitting, development, water use, site investigation, and regulatory issues, and are involved in all diligence and planning aspects of developing a project.
