Jack is an integral member of Burr & Forman's General Commercial Litigation group, representing domestic and international corporate clients in a diverse range of legal issues, spanning local, state, and national jurisdictions.

Jack's primary focus revolves around four key areas: commercial business disputes, toxic torts, product liability, and personal injury. His experience in these practice areas allows him to offer comprehensive legal support to clients facing a wide array of challenges. Jack prides himself on learning his clients' businesses and industries and applying his legal knowledge and litigation experience to address each client's unique needs.

Jack graduated from Auburn University, receiving his bachelor's degree in finance with a minor in political science. He earned his J.D. from George Washington University Law School, where he had a concentration in Business and Finance law. Jack served as the Staff Editor of the Business & Finance Law Review and as the Vice President of Outreach for the Banking and Securities Law Organization.
